Books are cool!

India has always been a land of storytellers. “Katha” or the narrative is a valued heritage that has moved from oral traditions to written texts, from the heard word to the read word. Today, in times so influenced by software and multimedia, Katha strives to keep our great storytelling traditions alive by publishing culturally distinctive children’s literature.

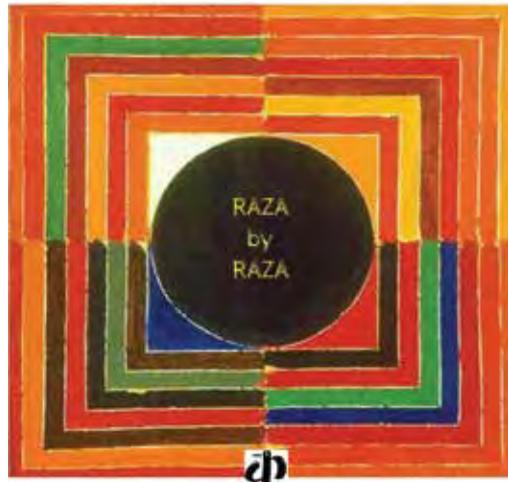

Katha’s children’s publishing programme boosts reading initiatives with stories that have been explored in-depth for their effect on impressionable young minds. Our books introduce children to the diverse regional influences of our own country as well as to international bestsellers for different age groups. All our books are published both in English and Hindi, to provide a boost to vocabulary and imagination of children.

Katha also organizes the Katha Chitrakala Award, a special initiative to identify and applaud excellence in writing and illustrating for children.

An array of stories for different age groups that will enchant, entertain and educate young readers. Experience the magic of story, the magic of Katha ...

Bangla Library

Satyadas BESTSELLER RECOMMENDED BY CBSE

Bimal Kar | Art by Neeta Gangopadhyay

A story about how truth and honesty are compromised when material well-being arrives. The story showcases with sensitivity the exit of human values with the advent of material wealth and prosperity.

Available in English and Hindi | Age Group: 10+ | Pub: 2006
Reprints: 8 | pp. 40 | 7" X 9" | ISBN 978-81-89020-68-2 [PB] [ENG] | Rs 95
ISBN 978-81-89020-72-9 [PB] [HINDI] | Rs 95 | World Rights: KATHA

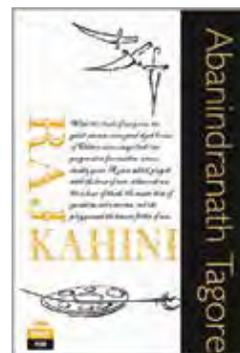

While the charcoal sketches bring to life the humble life and household of Raghunath, the story, originally written in Bengali, is about the decline in human values as one falls prey to greed. As the prologue to the book describes, it is a story "exploring truth, falsehood and everything in between".

What Shape is an Elephant?

Rumi | Art by Feeroozeh Golmohammadi

Translated from the Persian

What shape is an elephant? Is it round or crooked? Is it straight or is it curved? These are questions that go much deeper than they appear.

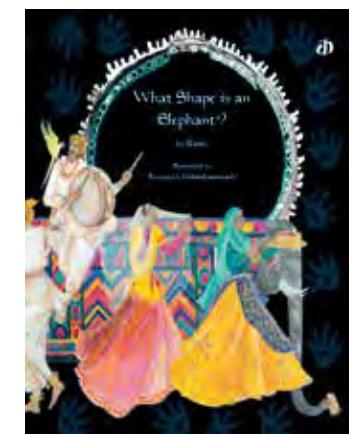

Katha introduces Rumi, the great spiritual leader of Iran, to children for the first time in India.

ISBN 978-81-89020-48-4 [HB] [ENG] | Rs 199 | World Rights: KATHA

The book is made lively with colourful illustrations by Feeroozeh Golmohammadi, an Iranian artist. The paintings convey a poetic rhythm, with the illustrations, speaking as much as the words. The book introduces Rumi to the readers and is simple and interesting in style. — The Indian Express Helping you to step into another magical world is the Persian poet and philosopher, Rumi's "What shape is an elephant?" It is the story of people trying to identify the shape of an elephant in the dark and coming out with hilarious interpretations. But what makes this particular book special is the exquisite illustrations. The brilliant innovation of the folded frieze is a bonus that would make one long to frame it as a treasured tapestry.

Breathtaking illustrations by Bindia Thapar are sure to keep the reader from putting the book down long after the story is done. The pictures in astounding colours bring the characters and the setting alive.

— The Hindu

The Magic Raindrop is a tale full of childhood fantasies and a yearning to break free. Using a metaphor of a kite, Geeta seems to suggest that all things are best left to their natural habitat. The illustrations by Bindia Thapar bring to life the characters, and the multi-coloured kites that kiss the sky. The use of bright and bold shades of reds, blues and greens breathe life into the pages, and you can almost hear the swish of kites fluttering past you. The last three pages of the book give you an enlightening view into the traditions of kite flying all around the globe. Kites are not just flown for entertainment, the Thais and the Nepalese send kites up with secret prayers to the gods.

The books are light and easy, and could well entice many children to the charms of reading.

— DNA

The stories are original, refreshing and are narrated imaginatively. They are aptly supported by illustrations by Sonal Panse. Panse's illustrations look like pencil drawings. Something a child can immediately identify with. Use of bright yet earthy colours like green and brown make it very friendly to the eye. The design too is innovatively done. Notice a speech bubble that doubles up as a white wooly nimbus cloud ... Nice.

— Buzzintown.com

The simple and lucid language used by the author Serene Kasim and the appealing illustrations by Sonal Panse make the series very interesting for the young readers of the age group 4-9 years.

I like such books which encourage young readers to have compassion for everybody and everything around them and to cultivate sensitivity towards the feelings of others. Also, it brings out a very subtle message that heaven is actually a state when we learn to appreciate and enjoy everything that we observe, experience and do, no matter how small or big, significant or insignificant that thing really is. If it gives us pleasure, the same becomes our heaven.

Simple illustrations by Paula Bossio using mostly pencil drawings are lovely and I am sure the drawings will motivate many kids to pick their pencils and doodle something that comes to their minds. That is what my kids did after reading this book. — Literary Sojourn

CHOSEN IN 101 BEST INDIAN CHILDREN'S BOOKS BY YOUNG ZUBAAN

A delightfully different book. It starts by narrating a story of Razia and her Pink Elephant but like a wayward mind, in which one thought leads to another; the story jumps from one zany situation to another with the reader finding herself on a roller-coaster ride of sorts. A zany story needs zany illustrations and it more than succeeded in creating images that will have kids poring over them, enjoying the quirky little idiosyncrasies.

WRITE&READ

A SEARCH FOR EXCELLENCE
IN CREATIVE WRITING

Designed to draw out the storyteller in every child, Write&Read is a Katha-HP initiative that allows young writers to convert their creative spark and imagination into new-age content for their peers.

A series of story writing workshops and an All India Story Writing Contest brought us this bunch of amazing stories by children, for children! Stories that are on different ends of the spectrum, and yet all alike in their power to catch our eye, tickle us sometimes, and even move us at their whim.

Available in all the leading bookstores and libraries.

By Us For Us

A truly worth appreciating effort to bring the students in touch with creativity. The workshop gave the students a lot of exposure into the world of literature and creative writing. A step ahead in building budding writers amongst us.

— Ramya Gangadharan, Teacher, Bengaluru

This is also a one-of-its kind, and perhaps the only initiative in the world of books, that is truly a peer-to-peer experience, one where young children will create content for other young children.

— Prasoon Joshi

The programme urged the children to dig deep for ideas.

The Magic of Story!

Katha believes that children can bring change that is sustainable and real. With the vision to equip them with reading skills, Katha initiated the I LOVE READING (ILR) programme. It is a unique programme that enhances reading in children so that they can be lifelong learners. ILR, with nearly 100,000 children across slums, streets and government schools, has been a huge success, getting a thumbs-up from the Delhi and the Central governments.

KATHA STORYSHOP

Katha Holistic Early Learning Workshops for All!

WHAT WE DO: Katha has created various Easy Readers for different age groups. This invaluable series and all our books come with teaching and learning resources that communicate new ideas and tested methods. With illustrated, reader-friendly Hindi translations, they come with interactive exercises for classroom teaching. Teachers working with stories in Katha Schools for the last 25 years have handpicked these stories for children.

HOW WE DO IT: Katha provides support in using our Easy Readers and books in classrooms. We are more than happy to conduct workshops in your school and orient teachers on how to add an element of fun and creativity in the learning process. We also organize creative workshops using story pedagogy® for the young and the young at heart, and are constantly on a look-out for collaborations and partnerships.

If you would like to invite us to conduct workshops in your school or would like to know more about what we do, please feel free to contact us at: info@katha.org

The teachers take greater responsibility for [their] children since the training. The very fact that our teachers travelled 3 hours one way (total six hours) to attend the course when there was no compulsion says a lot about the course!!!

— Dr Ankita Batla, Jatan Vidyalaya Muradnagar

Accolades for Our Outreach Initiatives!

"This is a model for all Government schools and shows the way forward. Continuous and comprehensive evaluation is actually practised here!"

— Amarjeet Singh, Joint Secretary, MHRD

"Creative learning activities of the Katha training ... have played a crucial role in increasing attendance at [our] centers."

— Deepak Singh
Project Coordinator, AROH Foundation

"... Basic reading skills are very important for children going from an oral to a written culture. The Katha methodology develops a lifelong taste for reading in children."

— Joint Evaluation Team, Government of India

"I and the six teacher [student] candidates have nothing but praise for [Katha]. Everything about the placement was perfect. ... We [are coming] to Katha again in 2013."

— Debra Tyler, Melbourne Graduate School of Education
The University of Melbourne

"... If [Katha] continues with same pace and dedication then they will ... make Delhi School System one of the highest performing Public School systems in India, starting from Primary School ... in the next five years, Department is keen to extend this project, 'I Love Reading' in more MCD schools."

— Additional Director of Education, MCD

Hindi Easy Readers II

CHOSEN AND RECOMMENDED BY NCERT

RECOMMENDED BY CBSE

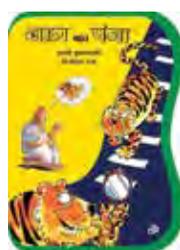

Tamasha! Easy readers takes children from 60 to 600 words of reading fluency in Hindi. The 600 words Katha has chosen are story-based and are a combination of easy and “difficult” words for which a child will have to use her intuition. They inspire the creativity of children and fuel their interest in reading. Teachers who have been working with stories in Katha Schools over the last 10-15 years, have chosen the stories which enhanced reading in their students.

BE A KATHA STORY AMBASSADOR!

10% of the sales from every Katha book goes to our programme for educating children living on the streets and in the slum clusters of Delhi, and in the Lisu tribal villages of Arunachal Pradesh.

Katha regularly plants trees to replace the wood used to make the paper on which our books are printed.

Katha brings children into the colourful world of literature through its splendidly illustrated storybooks. Drawing inspiration from Katha's various innovative activities for children, Kathakaar, Katha's Centre for Children's Literature, works with a pool of writers and illustrators to enhance the joys of reading; to showcase the multi-faceted traditions of Indian storytelling in lucid language with vivid illustrations. Our books bring children from across social and cultural divides into a shared space of curiosity, creativity and compassion.

Katha's education programme reaches out to nearly 100,000 children living in the streets, slums and tribal villages of India.

Katha's books have won the Encouragement and Runner Up Prize at the Noma Concours for Picture Book Illustrations, honourable mention at Biennial at Bratislava and Biennial of Asian Illustrations, Japan, and a nomination for the Astrid Lindgren Award amongst other recognitions. The Katha Chitrakala Award was instituted to foster and applaud excellence in writing and illustrating for children.

Set up in 1988, KATHA is a profit-for-all voluntary organization that works in the areas of education, publishing and community development.
